Calumet Regionalism: Past and Future

The 10th Annual Calumet Heritage Conference, in the Auditorium of the Academic Library at Chicago State University in Chicago, is a celebration of the Calumet region's foundations and future.....its diverse heritage.

One hundred years ago, Daniel Burnham and Edward Bennett's Plan for Chicago sounded a call to seriously study and plan for environmental, urban and economic improvement at the regional scale. Ten years ago, the Calumet Heritage Partnership picked up on that call and began to work across state and local lines in the Calumet region. This year's conference marks both anniversaries by examining some of the underpinnings of regional activity in the Calumet, and by considering the Partnership's own role in that activity.

The Calumet Heritage Partnership (CHP) is a diverse bi-state coalition of environmental, cultural and historical organizations, community residents, libraries, educational institutions, municipalities and government agencies. Its mission is to identify, preserve, protect, and reclaim the natural, historical, cultural and recreational treasures of the Calumet region.

Directions To The Conference
